

February 10, 2017

Amasia

Amasia is an early-stage venture capital firm with offices in the Bay Area and Singapore (www.amasia.vc). In a short period of time, the firm has built a leadership position by virtue of its focus on crossborder investing, the quality of the founders it has backed, and the reputation of its coinvestors.

The Role

The firm is now looking to hire associates in both its Silicon Valley and Singapore offices. Please note that this is a highly entrepreneurial situation, akin to joining a startup. Compensation, while adequate, will not be comparable to Wall Street paycales. However it is an entry point into venture capital, in an unusually experience-rich work environment, with significant scope for growth and responsibility.

The successful candidate will have prior experience working with technology companies or in principal investing roles, will be highly self-starting and able to operate with basic instructions, has a congenial and outgoing personality (this position will involve interactions with founding management teams), and can handle (and welcomes) a complex multi-country team environment. Exceptional writing and financial modeling skills will also be necessary.

Role Details

The responsibilities of the role focus on the sourcing and execution of investments into target companies. This includes

- Top of Funnel Activities
 - Strategy and execution on awareness, networking and branding
- Outbound Deal Sourcing
 - Sector and thematic reporting
 - Target company list generation and outreach
- Deal Execution
 - Investment memos
 - Financial models
 - Due diligence and structuring for new investments
- Other
 - Value addition for portfolio companies

John Kim
jk@amasia.vc
johnkim.co